Law Learning Journey

Is there a right to protest?

How many people are needed for a riot?

What can GCHQ do?

Is anything obscene in the 21st century?

Can trespassers be prosecuted?

Wagatha Christie?

How does the law protect victims from stalkers?

How do I protect my data?

Is Article 10 the cornerstone of a democratic society?

How did judges stop the Rwanda fights?

Do I have to answer police questions?

What has the Convention done for the citizens of the UK?

What is the role of Law in society?

Does the law in the UK provide justice for all?

Is privacy the same as private life?

Does everyone have a fair trial?

What is kettling?

Is everyone equal before the Law?

Is it possible for the law to reflect morals in a pluralistic society?

What do we mean by ultra vires?

What are the 'rules'?

Who are the Law Commission?

Does the law provide justice for lawful visitors?

Is there a right to a view?

Is it fair for employers to be responsible for the crimes of their employees?

Do we live in a democracy?

What is the role of judges in law making?

How is fault established in negligence cases?

Should occupiers be liable for injuries to trespassers?

Do we need the Rylands v Fletcher tort in the 21st century?

YEAR 13

What is the difference between common law and statutory law?

What does Lord Denning mean by 'necessity would open a door that no man could close'?

What is the difference between reasonable, excessive, and grossly disproportionate force?

Can intoxication ever be a defence?

Can an insane person stand trial?

Can you be guilty of the impossible crime?

Why can this defence not be used for murder?

Can you consent to extreme body modification?

What has a 'swarm of bees' have to do with this defence?

Why are we still using an 1861 Act for non-fatal offences?

Is the legal system like the Ritz Hotel?

What is the difference between murder and manslaughter?

How does this defence help close the gender divide?

What is the legal meaning of 'gross'?

Is burglary just breaking and entering?

Who exactly runs the country?

Is no win no fee as good as it sounds?

Is justice served where murder is reduced to voluntary manslaughter?

Is it fair that a person is convicted of a crime they did not intend or foresee?

Who owns a property left outside a charity shop?

When does theft become robbery?

Who controls the judges?

Is the jury the 'lamp that shows that freedom lives'?

Does prison work?

Magistrates or Crown?

How are cases allocated?

What is the difference between solicitors and barristers?

Why do people volunteer to become magistrates?

What is a miscarriage of justice?

Are there any alternatives to court?

YEAR 12

welcome

'Law is order, and good law is good order' - Aristotle